DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

2. Claims 2-31, 33, and 34 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Komiya 3958576.

3. Komiya teaches a clipping device comprising: an insertion tube; a sheath inserted in the insertion tube; an operation section connected to the sheath; an operation wire inserted in the sheath; a moving mechanism movably mounted on the operation section and fixed to the wire; a treatment member removably attached to the wire; a fixing mechanism to restrict relative movement between the sheath and the insertion tube and relative movement between the operation wire and the sheath; wherein the fixing mechanism includes: a first fixing member interposed between the insertion tube and the operation section; a second fixing member disposed in the operation section; wherein the first fixing member comprises a stopper removably attached to the sheath or wherein the first fixing member comprises a stopper removably attached to the insertion tube; wherein the treatment member is configured to be retracted in the insertion tube in accordance with the relative movement between the sheath and the insertion tube; and the fixing mechanism restricts the relative movement between the operation wire and the sheath in a state where the treatment is

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claim 32 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Komiya in view of Kimura et al. 6814742.
6. Komiya teaches the clipping device according to claim 29. It should be noted the Komiya fails to teach wherein the second fixing member comprises a spring member.
7. Kimura et al. teaches a device with a common spring member 156. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to include the spring member 156 of Komiya with the device of Komiya for more stable manipulation of the operation wire (col. 29, lines 16-22).
